Excerpt: . . . of University Heights from more than 100 citizens of New York, amounting to 200, 000, including the boathouse site, which was accepted as a subscription of 20, 000. University Heights passed into the possession of the university on July 1, 1892. A year later a few friends of the university purchased the estate lying immediately north of the university property and placed it on the city map as University Heights North. They were able thus to defend the University Heights neighborhood against undesirable uses, also to control the laying out of avenues and to enable the chancellor to secure a suitable residence. . Further, the Collegiate Church was provided with a handsome site fronting on the campus between Oxford Place and Loring Place. The Collegiate Consistory, the oldest ecclesiastical corporation on Manhattan Island, had generously resolved to establish a church at University Heights, no church edifice existing at that time within three-quarters of a mile of this point. They would provide not only fitting church buildings, but also the support of a. minister out of their endowments, because of their interest in the work of the university, whose first three chancellors were honored members of the Dutch Reformed Church. The university corporation was to profit further by University Heights North, in that it was to receive the gift from certain gentlemen concerned of any profits derived by them from the transaction. Thus the total amount of land purchased, either by the university or on...
