Not illustrated. 1889 Excerpt: .the one horn was less than the other, i. e. the horn which came up first; which symbolizes the fact that Media was less in military power and everything else; their sole king being Darius the Mede, who reigned one year; whereas from Persia five kings arose, who reigned fifty-five years. And by the words I saw the ram butting (ver. 4) is meant that he had armies which marched to the three quarters. This took place in the time of Cyrus, as is explained in Is. xlvi. 1. With 4 b compare ibid. 2. 21. We must again return to the contents of the dream which Gabriel did not explain. There came from the west: supposed to be Alexander, who came from Alexandria. And none touched the ground: i. e. none confronted him from the time that he left Alexandria till he came to Babylon. He explains that the notable horn between his eyes is Alexander, the first king; and he goes on to describe what the he-goat did; he smote the ram and broke his two horns: i.e. he fought the two armies, sc. the force of Persia and Media; and he cast him down to the ground: referring to his conquering their territory, city by city, and slaying those of them who withstood him: probably he killed Artaxerxes the Persian, and when the news got into the provinces, none of them opposed Alexander any more. And there was none that could deliver: i....
